HSA is very pleased to honor Lorraine Dong with our 2006 Spirit Award for her astonishing dedication to CHSA. Beginning in 1990 as a newly-inducted CHSA board member, Lorraine’s tireless and energetic commitment to CHSA spanned fourteen years until her retirement from the board in 2004. During these years, she served as president for six terms, not to mention a number of other board offices, as Bulletin editor, chair of numerous committees and annual galas, and as CHSA’s volunteer interim executive director in 2003. She also served on the leadership group that coordinated CHSA’s transition period, culminating in the move to the Julia Morgan-designed YWCA building.

Lorraine was born, raised, and educated in San Francisco Chinatown. She received her BA (summa cum laude) and MA from San Francisco State University, and her PhD from the Dept. of Asian Languages and Literature from the University of...
Since fall 2004, college students have been conducting interviews to collect the experiences, recollections, and impressions of immigrants who came through Angel Island Immigration Station during its years of operation, from 1910 to 1940. Interviewees and their interviewers will be reunited for a conversation about the process of recording first-hand experiences of immigrating to the United States through Angel Island. Speakers will share their process of recording oral histories, lessons learned, and how these personal narratives will be used for future generations. This program is co-sponsored by CHSA, Angel Island Immigration Station Foundation, and the Pacific Regional Humanities Center based out of UC Davis. For more information, contact AIISF at (415) 561-2160 or info@aiisf.org.

Washington in Seattle. Lorraine was also a former Rockefeller and Fulbright fellow. She wrote Sewing Woman, an Oscar-nominated documentary about a Chinese immigrant woman in America, and co-wrote two other award-winning Chinese American films, Lotus and Forbidden City, USA. In addition to publishing essays and articles, she co-authored the book, The Coming Man, 19th Century American Perceptions of the Chinese, with Philip P. Choy and Marlon K. Hom. Lorraine is currently professor and acting chair of Asian American Studies at SFSU.

The CHSA Spirit Award is one of our highest honors, established to acknowledge our volunteers and the unsung heroes who have given extraordinary time and energy to our organization. Please join us at our annual meeting to honor Lorraine’s amazing dedication to CHSA and to the Chinese American community.

Partnersing again with the Chinese Chamber of Commerce and the San Francisco Chronicle, CHSA presents the exhibit, Dragons, Drums, Floats, and Firecrackers! to honor the tradition and pageantry of the Chinese New Year Parade in San Francisco.

One of the largest parades in the world, San Francisco’s Chinese New Year Parade is also one of the oldest in the nation—a uniquely Chinese American celebration with roots in old Chinese traditions. Designed to attract tourism and business to Chinatown, the parade and the larger Chinese New Year festival draw participants from around the country.

Using photographs, memorabilia, and artifacts from CHSA’s collections, the San Francisco Chronicle archives, the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, and other contributors, the exhibit traces the historic and cultural roots of the parade and provides a behind-the-scenes look at this incredible event. The items and artifacts document the colorful history of a community celebration that represents the strong bond between San Francisco and its Chinese American identity and population.

Visit www.chsa.org for more information on “Dragons, Drums, Floats, and Firecrackers.”

San Francisco Bay Area visual artist Flo Oy Wong will open 2006 with her new installation, Talk Story: An American Family, at CHSA. Featuring monoprints, artist books, drawings, and her signature rice sacks, “Talk Story” acknowledges the influence of Gee Seow Hong, Wong’s father, on her artistic calling.

Previously exhibited at many renowned institutions and galleries—such as the Angel Island Immigration Station, the Ellis Island Immigration Station Museum, and the Smithsonian, and local venues such as the M.H. de Young Memorial Museum, Chinese Culture Center, and Oakland Museum—Wong’s art is again directly situated in San Francisco Chinatown after her December 2005 opening at the Flomenhaft Gallery in New York. The pieces featured in “Talk Story” evoke memories of family life in Oakland Chinatown, beginning with an incident that nearly took her father’s life in Flo’s infancy, and moving into her visual expressions of her older siblings’ stories.

The exhibition text is bilingual, engaging both English and Chinese-speaking communities with themes of family, narrative art, and sharing family stories. A brochure, produced by “Talk Story” curator Lenore Chinn, includes educational activities for families and classes visiting the show and is available for free from CHSA.

The public reception for “Talk Story” will be held Thursday, February 23, at 5:30 pm. Wong’s sisters and brother will also join her for a free family panel presentation on Thursday, March 30 at 7 pm.

What was it like to be a Chinese American child growing up in the deep South in the 1940s? Retired psychology professor John Jung recounts his youth in Macon, Georgia and the history of Chinese American communities in the South in Southern Fried Rice: Life in a Chinese Laundry in the Deep South (2005). His parents, both Cantonese immigrants, operated a Chinese laundry in Macon for over 20 years. Isolated from other Chinese Americans, the Jung family lived between white-black racial tension. Jung’s story, crafted from personal memories and archival research, reflects upon the toll of the immigration journey and living in the South on his strong and resilient parents.

Following the book reading, Jung will meet guests and sign books. Free to the public.

In Memoriam
DOROTHY CHIN WONG, LAWRENCE JUE, JOE YUEY

CHSA is saddened by the recent passing of Dorothy Chinn Wong, Lawrence Jue, and Joe Yuey, all endearing CHSA friends and community leaders.

Dorothy Chinn Wong was a long-time supporter of CHSA beginning in the early days of the organization’s founding. She remained a charter member, serving on the board for a term, and providing stalwart support during our capital campaign period to acquire and renovate the YWCA building. Dorothy was also a member in long-standing of the Square and Circle Club.

CHSA recognized Lawrence Jue at our 38th anniversary luncheon in 2001 for Distinguished Community Service. A mechanical engineer and naval architect, he was an impassioned champion for the community, leading the fight to preserve Chinatown schools and serving on the committee to save the Angel Island Immigration Station barracks. He was also founder of the Geen Mun Neighborhood Center.

Joe Yuey was one of the major movers and shakers of Chinatown. His legacy includes the creation of the Asian Art Museum in San Francisco, the Chinese Culture Center, his participation on the board of the Chinese American Democratic Club, and his strong backing of Chinese for Affirmative Action. He was the owner of Imperial Palace and later established the partnership to open Tommy Toy’s restaurant.
